Teaching Philosophy	My teaching philosophy is simple. I feel my duty is to emulate what Einstein once remarked "I never teach my pupils. I only attempt to provide the conditions in which they can learn." I hope to light the flame and provide the conditions for the flame to become a raging fire within for the unending pursuit of knowledge, by teaching them to think and question constantly. I also believe it is a wonderful opportunity and privilege to assists Students to accomplish their ultimate goal of obtaining an education and become and enlightened citizen. Students are the reason we have a University, and those students should always remain our number one focus. As Socrates once stated
