Title Department Office Number Extension Email Address	Senior Instructor School of Kinesiology Bourgeois Hall – Rm 112A 337-482-6280 lisa.leblanc@louisiana.edu
Education	Master of Education, Curriculum and Instruction (Health Promotion and Wellness Concentration), UL Lafayette Bachelor of Science, Health and Physical Education (Health Promotion and Wellness concentration), UL Lafayette CHES – Certified Health Education Specialist
Teaching Philosophy	My objective as a teacher is to help students succeed in their chosen academic discipline by offering content rich, navigable and ULearn certified online courses. I am fortunate to teach upper level students who have developed a good foundation to succeed in the professional health promotion and wellness courses and have experience learning in the online environment. Professional courses in the Health Promotion and Wellness program include clinical and internship opportunities. As an online certified teacher and course creator, my responsibilities to the students include providing an engaging and motivating online course that furthers their ability and experience to succeed in their chosen field after graduation. The professional courses designed and certified by the Office of Distance Learning follow the Quality Matters rubric and ensure the alignment of content, objectives, and activities to support learning in the online environment. Although challenging, the online environment has been a rewarding experience for me as an instructor and as evidenced by feedback from the students, also an enhanced learning opportunity for the student. I find that I learn more about each of my online students I would have never learned in a face to face environment, although I do miss the seeing their young, hopeful, and excited faces about their success.
